RATIONALE

Whilst there continues to be a bullish trend in many key markets a more cautious view of the future is beginning to be seen. Income remains a major part of wealth management, whatever economic circumstances prevail and so the opportunity for fixed income streams remains desirable. This investment has been designed to meet that need by offering a fixed payment irrespective of the performance of the underlying stock market indices. The selection of the underlying investments within this pay-off style seeks to ease any fears about dramatic market fluctuations. The inclusion of a final level barrier on these more developed markets underlines the continuing importance of capital protection.
